Annapurna Base Camp shortest Trek - 6 Days

Duration: 6 Days

Itinerary (Plan)

Day 1 Drive from Pokhara (822m) to Siwai and bit further (1530m) and trek to Chomrong (2170m)

- Time : 7-8hrs
- Max Altitude : 2170m

Accommodation: Tea-house

Meal: Breakfast + Lunch + Dinner

Beautiful drive from Pokhara (822m) to Siwai (1,530m), a scenic journey that takes approximately 3-4 hours. The drive offers stunning views of the lush countryside, terraced fields, and local villages, with the majestic Annapurna and Machapuchare peaks gracing the skyline. As you drive deeper into the Annapurna region, the landscape transforms into a peaceful retreat from the bustle of city life. After reaching Siwai, the adventure continues with a trek to Chomrong (2,170m), a picturesque village nestled in the hills. This 4-5 hour trek takes you across the Chomrong Khola via a suspension bridge, followed by a steady ascent through terraced farms and vibrant rhododendron forests. Chomrong, a key stop on the Annapurna Base Camp trek, offers spectacular views of Annapurna South and Machapuchare, making it an ideal destination for nature lovers and trekkers alike. This combination of a scenic drive and a rewarding trek makes the journey from Pokhara to Chomrong a perfect start to your Himalayan adventure.

Day 2 Chomrong (2170m) to Dovan (2600m)

- Time : 5-6 Hours
- Max Altitude : 2600m

Accommodation: Tea-house

Meal: Breakfast + Lunch + Dinner

After a restful night at a lodge in Chomrong, your journey continues towards the next checkpoint, Dovan. Dovan, situated at the base of a gorge, requires both ascending and descending as you make your way there, with a stop at Bamboo along the way. The day starts with crossing the Chomrong Khola on a suspension bridge, followed by a steady ascent toward Sinuwa, a scenic village with stunning views. From Sinuwa, you will trek through lush forests, passing Khuldighar, before arriving at Bamboo. After reaching Bamboo, a short descent leads you to your final destination for the day, Dovan (2,600m). This part of the Annapurna Base Camp Trek offers a mix of challenging climbs and breathtaking nature, making it a key highlight of your adventure.

Day 3 Dovan (2600m) to Deurali (3230m)

- Time : 5-6hrs
- Max Altitude : 3230m

Accommodation: Tea-house

Meal: Breakfast + Lunch + Dinner

The trek from Dovan (2,600m) to Deurali (3,230m) takes approximately 5-6 hours and offers a remarkable journey through dense forests and alpine landscapes. As you ascend, the vegetation changes, and the path becomes more rugged, providing a closer connection to the raw beauty of the Annapurna region. Along the way, you'll pass serene waterfalls, bamboo groves, and sections of the Modi Khola river. The trail gradually climbs towards Himalayan Hotel before reaching Deurali, where the valley opens up, offering stunning views of the towering peaks. This section of the Annapurna Base Camp trek is known for its diverse natural beauty and serene atmosphere, making it a memorable part of the journey. Rest and acclimatize at Deurali, preparing for the final ascent to Machapuchare Base Camp and Annapurna Base Camp.

Day 4 Deurali (3230m) to Annapurna Base Camp (4130m)

- Time : 5-6hrs
- Max Altitude : 4130m

Accommodation: Tea-house

Meal: Breakfast + Lunch + Dinner

The trek from Deurali (3,230m) to Annapurna Base Camp (4,130m) is one of the most exhilarating sections of the Annapurna Base Camp trek, taking around 4-5 hours. The ascent begins with a gradual climb toward Machapuchare Base Camp (3,700m), offering breathtaking views of Mount Machapuchare (Fishtail Mountain) and the surrounding Himalayan peaks. As you continue from Machapuchare Base Camp, the trail opens up, revealing panoramic views of the Annapurna Sanctuary. Upon reaching Annapurna Base Camp, you’ll be rewarded with a stunning 360-degree view of some of the world’s highest peaks, including Annapurna I (8,091m), Annapurna South, Hiunchuli, and Gangapurna. This section is a highlight of the trek, providing an unforgettable experience of the majestic Annapurna range. Reaching Annapurna Base Camp is a dream come true for trekkers, offering incredible photo opportunities and a sense of accomplishment.

Day 5 Annapurna Base Camp (4130m) to Sinuwa (2360m)

- Time : 6-7hrs
- Max Altitude : 4130m

Accommodation: Tea-house

Meal: Breakfast + Lunch + Dinner

The trek from Annapurna Base Camp (4,130m) to Sinuwa (2,360m) is a long but rewarding descent, taking around 6-7 hours. After enjoying the spectacular sunrise and panoramic views at Annapurna Base Camp, you'll begin your journey back by retracing your steps. The trail takes you through Machapuchare Base Camp and continues descending towards Deurali and Bamboo, where the lush green forests and waterfalls greet you once again. As you lose altitude, the change in vegetation becomes evident, with the return of rhododendron forests and bamboo groves. After reaching Bamboo, the trail includes a short ascent to Sinuwa, your final destination for the day. This section of the Annapurna Base Camp trek provides a mix of scenic beauty and cultural encounters, as you pass through picturesque villages and immerse yourself in the tranquil surroundings of the Annapurna Conservation Area.

Day 6 Sinuwa (2360m) to Siwai (2170m) and Drive to Pokhara

- Time : 5-6hrs
- Max Altitude : 2360m

Accommodation: Tea-house

Meal: Breakfast + Lunch + Dinner

The final leg of your Annapurna Base Camp trek takes you from Sinuwa (2,360m) to Siwai (1,170m), followed by a scenic drive back to Pokhara. This day involves around 5-6 hours of trekking, as you descend through lush forests and charming villages, with the trail offering a blend of moderate ascents and descents. After departing from Sinuwa, you'll first descend steeply to Chomrong Khola and then ascend to the village of Chomrong. From here, a gradual descent takes you past terraced fields and through the beautiful village of Jhinu Danda, famous for its hot springs. Continuing downhill, the trail eventually leads to Siwai, where your trek concludes. At Siwai, you'll board a vehicle for a 3-hour drive back to Pokhara. The drive is a relaxing end to your adventure, offering glimpses of the mountains and countryside you've just trekked through. This final day marks the end of your Annapurna Base Camp trek, allowing you to reflect on the incredible landscapes and cultural experiences you encountered along the way.
